LBJ seeks crop control

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson asked Congress Tuesday to make permanent this year his administration's multibillion dollar crop control program, but he immediately ran into a strong and influential "no" on Capitol Hill.

Chairman Allen J. Ellender, D-La., of the Senate Agriculture Committee, told newsmen there is "not a chance" that Congress will act on the legislation this session. He added that Congress would never make it permanent.

Johnson, in an election year farm message decrying farmers' lagging income, declared that failure to extend this program would bring "catastrophe and ruin" to many farmers. The program, enacted in 1955, is now scheduled to expire in 1969.

Under this program, which Johnson described as the backbone of present federal farm aid measures, the government has been making payments running upwards of $3 billion a year to farmers for idling land not needed to produce wheat, feed grains and cotton.

Ellender said this and most other farm legislative proposals — with the major exception of foreign food aid measures — will be taken up in the 1969 session. The President made several other recommendations for farm and rural areas which had been anticipated by congressmen and farm leaders.

Significantly, most of them had been declared as essential to a stable agriculture by Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman in recent farm area political speeches saying that only a Democratic president and a Democratic Congress would provide the measures.

Most of Johnson's major farm proposals are highly controversial not only among lawmakers but among farmers and their leaders. Several may become major issues in November.

One proposal includes recommendations for a three-year extension of the Food for Freedom program under which this country makes food and technical assistance available to needy countries which take steps to increase their own food output. Hearings on such legislation, which has encountered little opposition, already have been scheduled by congressional agriculture committees.

Publisher criticizes services

WASHINGTON (AP) — O. Roy Chalk, Washington businessman and weekly newspaper publisher who has announced plans to launch a new daily paper, said Tuesday that Congress should outlaw "the outdated restrictions placed on new newspapers by organizations such as the Audit Bureau of Circulation and the wire services."

"Newspaper associations, wire services and syndicates clearly discriminate against the entrepreneur," Chalk said in a statement read to the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee by Jack Limpert, editor of his Washington (D.C.) Examiner.

Much of Limpert's testimony was aimed against restrictions he said were imposed by The Associated Press and United Press International.

He also complained that the Examiner cannot obtain an audit of its circulation by the Audit Bureau of Circulation unless half its circulation is paid.

Limpert said the weekly Examiner distributes 200,000 copies, 135,000 of them given away on the buses of the D.C. Transit System, Inc., which Chalk heads.

Officials in Hue vanished

HUE, Vietnam (AP) — When Communist forces virtually overran Hue four weeks ago the city's official structure vanished like a punctured soap bubble.

The conduct of the city's officialdom was the despair of American advisers as Hue was slowly freed.

"They are leaderless and gutless," one harried American exploded after a day of frustrations.

More than 1,000 soldiers were on leave in the old imperial city when it was overrun. Most of them wound up in the central refugee camp at Hue University. Not for 21 days did anyone try to organize them into an effective force.

"A full colonel walked out of there," an American official reported. "He hadn't done a damn thing but hide for three weeks."

A doctor from neighboring Quang Nam Province was vacationing in Hue when the Communists struck. His own house never fell into Communist hands and he was untouched. Yet, with thousands in the city needing medical care, he never treated a patient. It wasn't his job, he said.

Two of the city hospital's regular doctors were caught trying to flee on a U.S. Navy landing boat bound for Da Nang and were forcefully returned to work.

They were not alone. The handful of American civilians in Hue had many requests from Vietnamese for transportation to safer areas. The wife of the ranking Vietnamese government officer in the 1st Corps area imperiously demanded to be put on an American helicopter. She was politely turned down.

Looting of the city was most obvious.

Not for 17 days did the province chief, Lt. Col. Pham Van Khoa, issue orders to shoot looters.

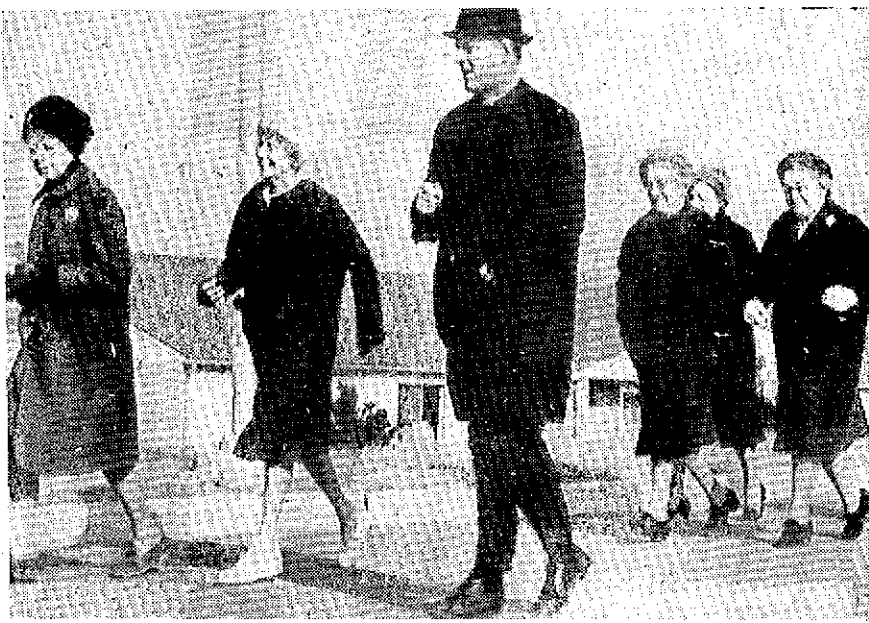

"By then everything had already been stolen, sometimes twice," an American official said.

Profiteers were also present. At one stage the price of rice was up 200 per cent. A province official was caught diverting three American aid rice sacks — worth almost $1,000 at the time — and shrugged it off as a bureaucratic slipup. The rice no longer passes through his hands, but he was unpunished.

Had it not been for the American presence, the situation would have sunk to chaos. It was American rice which kept more than 60,000 refugees from starvation and American medical teams which administered the thousands of shots which warded off disease.

It was more than three weeks before Khoa began to get the shaky government machinery moving at all. He had been missing for the first seven days, hiding in civilian clothes in part of the city overrun by the Communists.

Only about 10 per cent of the civil servants had by then even checked in at their offices. He ordered the force back to work the following day, on pain of dismissal, and most then showed up.

Con-Con plan would force balanced budget

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Constitutional Convention, pushing hard to meet its deadline, gave final approval Tuesday night to a proposal that would overhaul state budget and audit procedures.

The proposal, adopted by an 89-42 vote, would require the governor to balance the annual budget he presents to the legislature by proposing a new revenue program any time an increase in state spending is suggested.

The way had been cleared for advancing the proposal by the adoption of a compromise agreement on judicial selection at a marathon session that extended into the early hours Tuesday morning.

The agreement would permit voters to decide in the 1969 Primary Election whether they want to continue the present system of electing state judges, or use a so-called merit selection plan.

Despite the compromise, unanimity was far from complete on the over-all judicial reform plan.

Former State Sen. Robert P. Casey of Lackawanna County, convention first vice president, argued that the proposal should be held up until several points of contention have been resolved.

Casey, who has been critical of the proposal's treatment of the minor judiciary, scored a provision that would permit magistrates rather than legally trained judges to man Philadelphia's traffic court.

"This is not a system we should recommend to the people of Philadelphia," Casey said. "It is a system that all available evidence indicates the people do not want."

"I have been told that it is too late to do anything about it. Well, it is not too late. We have until midnight Thursday. I think we can do a lot better than this proposal as it now stands. I will continue to fight for the best judicial proposal possible."

Despite Casey's plea, delegates voted 126-23 to advance the proposal to third reading. That means it could be approved finally at Wednesday's session. However, the proposal could still be amended if a majority of delegates agree to accept an amendment before final passage.

At the outset of Tuesday's session, delegates were visibly disturbed when delegate Charlotte M. Fawcett proposed that they adopt the original Judicial Committee proposal in the form it was submitted to the floor eight days and nearly 100 amendments ago.

Clark told newsmen after the endorsement: "Of course I support the President's position on Vietnam. No one has done more to bring about peace than he has."

Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, who headed the powerful subcommittee, told newsmen that the committee's not slating Stevenson does not mean the son of the late two-time nominee for president is politically dead.

"He's got two more years to serve as state treasurer," Daley said. "He told the committee members he would enthusiastically support the party ticket and I know he will."

Stevenson cannot, by law, succeed himself two years from now as state treasurer and it is conceivable he will be out of public office until 1972 when Illinois again will elect a governor and Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., will be up for re-election.

LBJ, Wheeler meet today

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gen. Earle G. Wheeler will report to President Johnson in Washington at 8:30 a.m. (EST) Wednesday on his trip to Vietnam and troop needs there.

Reports from Saigon and Washington have been agreeing that the U.S. commander in Vietnam, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, wants 50,000 to 100,000 more men. White House officials have insisted no recommendations have reached the President.

Viet capital guards against new drive

SAIGON (AP) — American infantrymen battled Viet Cong in the Mekong Delta 80 miles southwest of Saigon Tuesday while announcement of the interception of some enemy armor closer at hand contributed to jitters in the capital.

Amid rumors that Saigon was in for a second wave of the Communist offensive, planes and helicopters crisscrossed the sky over the city in the night and flares lighted the outskirts.

South Vietnamese headquarters said three Communist tanks and a half-tracked armored personnel carrier had been spotted near the Cambodian frontier 50 miles northwest of the city in the deepest such armored penetration of the war.

A company of about 100 U.S.-advised Special Forces irregulars was reported to have blown up one of the vehicles with anti-tank rockets, killing 30 of the enemy in the explosion. The U.S. Command listed the group not as tanks and a personnel carrier, but as "armored vehicles of an unspecified type" pending further information from the field. Previously the presence of enemy tanks in the country had been confirmed only in the northwest near the U.S. Marine base at Khe Sanh.

American authorities said the vehicles were accompanied by an enemy detachment estimated at battalion strength, about 400 men. These were reported to have headed west, presumably into Cambodia, after a two-hour fight. Neither U.S. nor South Vietnamese spokesmen had any word that the armored vehicles opened fire.

The delta fighting flared Monday near Can Tho, a provincial capital, rice market and lumber center badly damaged in the Communists' lunar new year offensive. Helicopters and Navy river boats ferried in men of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division. Jet fighter-bombers and artillery helped to soften up positions of a sizable enemy force.

Details were sketchy, but the U.S. Command said preliminary reports said 57 enemy troops had been killed. Two Americans died and 16 were wounded in Communist counterattack in the night. Spokesmen would not disclose other American casualties on the ground that the fighting was still under way. Enemy fire felled a U.S. Air Force F100 Super Sabre jet. The pilot was rescued unhurt.

While main attention has centered lately on Hue and Khe Sanh in the north, Vietnamese and American forces have been sweeping through rivers and canals to hunt down elements of the Viet Cong regiments that had attacked 11 of the Mekong Delta's 16 provincial capitals. Those attacks set off fighting in which more than 1,250 civilians were killed, more than 3,000 wounded and 80,000 or more were left homeless. Fifty died in Can Tho.

American headquarters said the latest action began with a helicopter assault by one company — perhaps 180 men — three miles west of Can Tho. The pilot was rescued unhurt.

Dad's faith steadies actor

By JAMES STEWART

When I was a boy in the town of Indiana, Pa., Stewart's Hardware Store seemed the center of the universe.

It was a three-story structure filled with everything needed to build a house, hunt a deer, plant a garden, repair a car or make a scrapbook.

Even after I moved away and saw larger sights, the store remained with me. But then I realized that what was central to my life was not just the store but the man who presided over it — my father.

Alexander Stewart was a muscular Irishman whose talk was as blunt as his face. The store not only provided his family a living but also was a forum where he pronounced opinions seldom tailored to the popular style. If he had ever heard the slogan about the customer always being right, he would have scorned it.

Strong faith

Dad was a Presbyterian, strong in his religion as he was in all beliefs.

Doing things with my father was always fun, for his imagination added a dimension to events.

When President Harding died, the funeral train was scheduled to pass through a town about 20 miles from ours. I wanted desperately to go and see the train, but Mother pointed out that there would be school the next day and that it would be a long trip. That ended the discussion.

But Dad did not forget. When the day arrived, he came to me and, in a voice as near a whisper as his nature would allow, said, "Jim, boy, it's time to see the funeral train."

When we came to the railroad station, a half dozen people were talking in hushed tones and looking down the tracks. Suddenly the tracks gave off a low hum — the funeral train was coming!

Dad shoved two pennies into my hand and said, "Run, put them on the rails. Quick!"

I jumped back to hold his hand as the engine thundered past, pulling a glass-windowed observation car in which we saw the flag-draped casket, guarded by two Marines.

After the train had roared off, I retrieved the two flattened pennies. Dad put one in his pocket and I kept the other.

As we drove home, I examined mine and found that the two feathers of the Indian headdress had become a great plume. On the other side two slender stalks of wheat had grown and burst, as if the seed had ripened and scattered.

For years, Dad and I carried those coins flattened by the weight of history. And the knowledge of what we shared made me feel very close to him.

Legislative change urged

HARRISBURG (AP) — A five-point plan aimed at making the legislature a more effective branch of government was offered by the House Democratic leadership Tuesday.

Minority Leader Herbert Fineman, D-Philadelphia, presented the plan during a specially called news conference in the Capitol.

"We are concerned about the quality of our legislative endeavors and the role those endeavors play in making the legislature a true coordinate, effective and responsible branch of government," Fineman said.

The plan outlined the following recommendations:

— Establish a yearly calendar calling for adjournment of the legislature by June, although committees and task forces could continue to meet for the remainder of the year.

— Reduce the number of standing committees from 33 to 15, with each committee to have a full-time working staff for both the majority and minority members.

— Create parallel jurisdiction in House and Senate committees to facilitate joint hearings and other joint enterprises.

— Establish committee operating rules to bring about what the leaders referred to as

"more democratization of committee procedures."

— Reorganize legislative service agencies under a single head with all positions staffed on a full-time, non-partisan basis.

The plan was offered in response to an earlier proposal by House Republicans that a commission be formed to study ways of modernizing the legislature.

The GOP leadership had expressed concern over the image of the legislature, and Fineman agreed that lawmakers had been subject to much criticism in the wake of the 1967 session.

Fineman said, however, that some of the criticism should have been leveled at Gov. Shafer, who, according to the minority leader, failed to provide adequate executive leadership.

"We remind our Republican friends that reforms will not in themselves improve the public image of the General Assembly."

Fineman endorsed the commission idea generally and said among its duties should be review of the present $7,200 annual salary paid to lawmakers.

Social Security benefits hit record $2 billion

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The U.S. Treasury started mailing Tuesday the largest batch of monthly Social Security checks in its history: there'll be 20 million, worth about $2 billion going to nearly 24 million men, women and children.

The checks, scheduled to be delivered by the mailman on Saturday all over the country, reflect a minimum 13 per cent increase in benefits recently approved by Congress—largest in 32 years.

There are six disbursing offices — Philadelphia, Chicago, Kansas City, San Francisco, Washington and Birmingham, Ala.—but roughly 40 per cent, or 8.3 million, of the checks go out from here.

Because of the heavy volume, the post office sends about 200 workers to the treasury building to help in processing the checks and sorting them by states and zip codes.

"We're under constant pressure," Philadelphia Postmaster Anthony L. Lambert said, "because they must go out exactly on time and the beneficiaries are waiting for their arrival. It's what most get to live on for a month."

Philadelphia, because of its volume, got a day's start on the other offices. Kansas City handles 3.8 million Social Security checks, Chicago 3.5 million, San Francisco and Birmingham 2.1 million each, and Washington—mailing only to beneficiaries who live outside the United States—200,000.

The minimum payment to a worker who retired at 65 is now $55, up from the previous $44. The average payment is now $98, increased from $86. A husband and wife now average $165, up from $145, while widows get an average of $86, a boost of $11.

About three of every 10 beneficiaries today are under 65, most children of working fathers who died.

James Abbott, the treasury's regional disbursing officer, says the magnetic computer tape provided by the Social Security Administration which certifies payments has virtually eliminated mistakes.

Jimmy Stewart relates story

During World War II, I enlisted in the Air Corps and became part of a bomber squadron.

When we were ready to fly overseas, Dad came to the farewell ceremonies in Sioux City, Iowa. We were very self-conscious with each other, talking in generalities, trying to conceal our awareness that, starting the next day, he could no longer walk with me.

At the moment of parting, he studied his shoes a moment, then looked at the sky. I knew he was searching for a final word to sustain me, but he couldn't find it.

We embraced, then he turned and walked quickly away. Only after he had gone did I realize that he had put a small envelope in my pocket.

That night alone in my bunk, I opened it and read, "My dear Jim, soon after you read this letter, you will be on your way to the worst sort of danger. I have had this in mind for a long time and I am concerned. . . . But Jim, I am banking on the enclosed copy of the 91st Psalm. The thing that takes the place of fear and worry is the promise in these words. I am staking my faith in these words. I feel sure that God will lead you through this mad experience. . . . I can say no more. I only continue to pray. God bless you and keep you. I love you more than I can tell you. Dad."

Borne up

Never before had he said he loved me. I always knew he did but he had never said it until now. I wept.

In the envelope there was also a small booklet bearing the title "The Secret Place — A Key to the 91st Psalm." I began to read it. From that day, the little booklet was always with me. Before every bombing raid over Europe, I read some of it, and with each reading the meaning deepened for me.

"I will say of the Lord, He is my refuge and my fortress."

His truth shall be thy shield and buckler. Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night; nor for the arrow that flieth by day. . . . For He shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways. They shall bear thee up in their hands, lest thou dash thy foot against a stone."

And I was borne up. Dad had committed me to God, but I felt the presence of both throughout the war.

Scared desk

When Mother died in 1936, we buried her in the family plot in Indiana, Pa. With his wife gone, Dad could work up no new enthusiasms. Her quiet strength had sustained him, and with her gone he quickly withered away.

It was a bleak January day when I saw him placed beside his ancestors, men who had lived longer than he had but who were perhaps less demanding of life.

After it was all over, I went to the hardware store and let myself in with a key I hadn't touched for 30 years. The interior smelled of metal, leather, oil and fertilizers, the odors of my childhood.

I sat at his scared oak desk and idly pulled open the middle drawer. It held a clutter of pencils and paper clips and bolts and paint samples. Something something glistened among them. I picked up the funeral-train penny with the flattened Indian face and the burst grain.

For a long time I sat there at his desk, fingering the Indian head penny and thinking. Then I put it in my pocket, took a last look at familiar and loved objects, and walked out of the store, locking the door behind me.

Stroudsburg Area School District graphic arts students, under William Honey, are printing letters announcing the annual Easter Seal Campaign held by the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults, March 1 through April 14. Students pictured working on the project are Harold Angle, Phillip Eilenberger, and Terry Hagerty.

More Monroe County women are working, survey shows

STROUDSBURG — An increasing number of women in Monroe County have been entering the labor force in recent years.

The latest figures indicate that no less than 37.7 percent of the local female population over the age of 14 are now employed outside the home or are looking for such employment.

By way of comparison, as recently as 1960 the percentage was 34.8. The census taken at that time showed a total of 5,247 local women in the labor force.

Much of the increase is attributed to married women, particularly those over 40, returning to the labor force. Now that their children are growing up, they find that they are able to discharge their household duties and still have enough time left over to take outside jobs, either part-time or full time.

The changes that have been taking place in the female employment picture are brought out in national studies made by the Department of Labor, the National Industrial Conference Board and others.

High local rate
In Monroe County, on the basis of their overall findings, the proportion of working women is greater than it has ever been.

The 37.7 percent that are estimated to be in the labor force in the local area tops the Combined corps to hold practice

STROUDSBURG — The combined Corps of the Bangor Yellow Jackets and the Keystone Grenadiers of the Stroudsburg area will practice today at 7:30 p.m. at the Thomas P. Lambert Veterans of Foreign Wars Post.

It is important that all members be present for a decision on attending a St. Patrick's Day Parade in Allentown.

United States average of 37.4 percent and the State of Pennsylvania's 36.2 percent.

The surveys show that age is no longer a barrier to employment for women. More than half of those between 45 and 54 are now in the labor force and, of those between 55 and 64, about two-fifths.

With about 35 percent of all wives bringing home paychecks these days, the Institute of Life Insurance poses the question: "What would happen — strictly from an economic viewpoint — if all the wives now working were to quit and devote their full time to homemaking?"

One effect, it believes, would be that the country would experience an acute labor crisis overnight and that a good deal of our national prosperity would vanish.

Another would be that many households would feel a financial pinch and would have to readjust their mode of living to compensate for the loss of income, which is a substantial item in many families.

Surprise. You thought you were going to see a roomy, homely Volkswagen station wagon.

But it's a new kind of roomy, homely Volkswagen station wagon.

To begin with, getting in is easier: the front doors are lower and wider. And with the side door we've achieved a milestone in station wagon door-dram. It slides.

Once inside, you might even think you're in a normal car. Everything's padded. Including the dashboard, visors, and the armrests. (Besides looking like a car, we've improved the suspension so it even rides like a car.)

There are bucket seats up front. And where most cars have something called a console, the new box has an aisle. (If the mood should strike you, you can walk the length of the box.)

So when you look inside the new box expect to be pleasantly surprised. But not overwhelmed.

Because as boxes go, our station wagon is now pretty fancy.

But as station wagons go, it's still a box.

Marijuana use — it's dynamite

There ought to be growing concern in our community over the use of drugs. Twice in the last six months there have been planned raids by State Police. Last weekend some youngsters were picked up by chance and charged with possession of drugs.

A couple of weeks ago over 20 were arrested in Orange County, New York, most of them connected with the community college in Middletown. The colleges have come to be centers of drug use, particularly marijuana, as debates on its potential harm swirl like clouds of its smoke.

East Stroudsburg, of course, has a college where there must at least be experimentation with "pot" among many students. It is difficult to locate a collegian from any school who has not been offered a marijuana puff or had a chance to observe classmates giving it a try.

Call it a fad or a vice, the pattern is predictable. It began in metropolitan centers, moved in on the emerging young adults at college and has begun to drift down among the post-high schoolers hanging around and the more adventurous (to put it kindly) in our public schools.

This is the sort of foolishness that has brought trouble with alcohol over the last several decades. Liquor and beer, especially in inexperienced bodies, are a problem but compared to the sinister implications of dope use and traffic, they appear mild. What's more, according to the law, the penalty for their use or sale is comparatively mild.

It is time for local parents and local school officials to check on the possible drug habits of youngsters who could be making very great mistakes under the impression that they are only joining a growing crowd of their peers or only enjoying their rebellious kicks in a mildly illegal fling.

As of right now any use or acquisition of drugs including marijuana is the dynamite that can blow up a lifetime.

Showing police 'colors' deferrent to accidents

The new patrol pattern established by the Pennsylvania State Police and recently announced by Commissioner Frank McKetta should go a considerable way toward helping reduce road deaths and injuries. The new policy is geared around a simple human fact: when the police are around—or thought to be around—a certain area, motorists have a tendency to behave themselves.

Commissioner McKetta has directed troop commanders to spot highway stretches in their districts which have proved to be the most dangerous and determine the times of day when accidents appear to be the most frequent.

When these matters are determined, troopers are to spend as much time as possible in the critical areas, during the dangerous periods. They are to be in full view of drivers at all times. And, Commissioner McKetta has ordered, they are to keep in mind that the principal objective is to prevent accidents by their presence and by reporting hazardous road conditions.

The visibility program, interwoven with other patrol changes dealing with warnings and arrests, appears a simple response to a major problem.

Sometimes it is the simple things which are most effective, however. This could be one of them. Think of how you react when alerted to the possibility a state police car is up ahead or just around the bend. Multiply this by the number of motorists in the Commonwealth, and the value of the policy becomes evident.

With Gene Brown

A mother of a teenager, after many months of being unable to use her own telephone because it was always in use, sought refuge by installing a new phone in the girl's name. To her dismay, when trying to use the phone a few days later, she discovered her daughter in lengthy conversation with another girl.

"Susan!" she said with feeling. "What's the idea? Didn't I get you your own phone so you could call your friends?" "Yes, mother," the girl replied, "but I can't call out on my phone because then if somebody tries to reach me, the line would be busy."

Despite all the advances man has made in the science of communication, we find that rumor remains tops in speed and embellishment.

Sure sign of defeat

NEW YORK — We'll know when the war has gotten completely out of hand in South Vietnam. That will be the day the Viet Cong takes a shot at the leading hotels, restaurants and stores of Saigon, or blow up an American or British Oil Company truck plying the roads of that war-ravaged country.

Those establishments and corporations pay taxes to the VC.

It is the newest version of the old "protection" game, and a great help to the enemy. It means large amounts of money with which he can purchase the vital supplies China and the Soviet Union cannot or will not provide. Rice and medical supplies, for example.

Woe betide the VC tax dodger. The last large establishment which tried to get away with it was the biggest floating restaurant on the Saigon waterfront. It was blown up with a serious loss of life. The rebuilt restaurant has not been touched since.

The owner pays his taxes now.

Without care
Gasoline trucks which could be destroyed by a single shot from the side of the road ply the lumpy roads without a care. When stopped by a VC road block they pay a toll and are given a receipt. If stopped further down the road by another VC group, they simply show the receipt and it is honored.

There is reason to believe that the Saigon government gives tribute to the enemy to lay off a big state-owned cement plant in an area dominated by the VC. Trucks move in and out of the factory area without trouble. Normally, the protection of such traffic would require troops, armored cars and even aerial support. Saigon governments since the one that dislodged and killed Diem are said to have found it cheaper to pay the VC to let the cement out than to fight to keep the traffic moving.

In the boondocks the VC have long enforced a barter system of taxation. Money is seldom demanded. Instead, the guerrilla chief will simply instruct the farmers to yield or put in escrow so many pounds or tons of rice and other food, in exchange for not killing them.

It's as simple and terrible as that.

A student in a public school might get himself arrested if he stood up in class and uttered a prayer, even a prayer for peace or for the brotherhood of man.

But it was perfectly legal for a rally in memory of Malcolm X to be held at Intermediate School 201 here in New York last week, during school hours. In addition to prayerful adulation of the memory of the dangerous ex-convict and hate-monger who became a leader of the Black Muslim movement before he was gunned down, the rally crowd denounced White America and urged all Negroes within earshot to arm themselves for "self-defense."

The principal of the school, Martin W. Frey, would not give his approval for the meeting to be held. He was over-ruled by the superintendent of schools, Dr. Bernard E. Donovan.

Since expressing his objection, Frey has been subjected to anonymous telephone threats on his life. He must now go about his duties at the school with two plainclothes policemen at his side, as body guards.

When the Board of Education remonstrated to Dr. Donovan that there must be no more repetitions of such leniency, the New York Civil Liberties Union stepped forward to say that the board had no right "to concern itself with the content of what is said at any meeting by a private group on public property."

Reminds me of the story of the teacher who spotted a knot of students whispering in the back of the classroom.

"What are you doing back there?" she called out, sharply.

"Telling dirty stories," a boy said.

"Thank goodness," the teacher sighed. "For a moment I thought you were praying."

Guru might answer

WASHINGTON — What with Mia Farrow, the Beatles and other big names going to see the Guru, perhaps it's time President Johnson went to see him, too. In fact, I'm sort of surprised LBJ didn't stop off at the Guru's place in India when he made his world tour. (It would have been quite simple; the Guru has become so successful, he has his own helicopter pad.)

Celebrities go to the Guru, Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, in the hope that he will teach them how to live with their problems and, perhaps, understand the meaning of life. Frankly, I can hardly think of better reasons than that for Lyndon, at this point in history, to seek the Guru's counsel. Just for fun, let us imagine such a confrontation.

LBJ drops down at the Guru's house without an appointment. An assistant Guru informs the President that the Guru's calendar is filled for the next few days, with meditative sessions with the Rolling Stones, Twiggy and Harold Stassen. Lyndon is told to stand on his head in a corner and think calm thoughts while preparing himself for the great moment.

Smile of greeting

At last the Guru appears. He smiles at President Johnson, sits down and gathers his silken robes about him. The Guru says nothing. Lyndon reaches over, throws an arm about his shoulders and says, "Hey, there, Guru, how y'all? Man, the food in this place is terrible. Haven't you people ever heard of chili?"

The Guru tells LBJ to "cool it" and asks what he came to see him about.

"You don't know? Man, I've got some kind of problems. Like, everywhere. I've come for some of that enlightenment. For instance, Guru, baby, what is the meaning of life?"

The Guru's eyes go blank, he thinks for several minutes (while Lyndon makes five phone calls) and finally he says, "Life is like a still pool in which there are occasional ripples."

Lyndon says, "Say, sport, I didn't fly all this way at the taxpayers' expense for you to tell me life is like a still pool. Shucks, Walt Rostow could have told me that! And he's an expert at making ripples. Even waves. Now, get with it, what is life all about?"

"Hmmm. Well, how about this: Life is like a hydrogen bomb, always ready to explode. If you don't like that definition, let's just drop it."

"Drop the hydrogen bomb?!!! Hot dog, Guru, and they told me you were a pacifist. Now you're talking! How many more suggestions do I get for my dollar?"

Actually, it's too bad McNamara is leaving the Defense Department on Feb. 29. This way we can celebrate it only every four years.

The government says anyone who has to live on $3,000 per year or less is poverty-stricken. Yet, it implies that Americans should get by in Europe on $7 per day! Seven times $5 is $2.55.

President Johnson says he has confidence in Gen. Westmoreland. Oh, oh, that's a bad sign.

Someone threw a bomb at the Russian Embassy. That's a switch; generally it's the Bolsheviks who lose the firecrackers.

Our Vietnam troops must wonder how much longer we can afford to "win" like this.

Showdown nears on fiscal issues

Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — The Senate is going to be given a chance in March to vote on a scaled-down version of President Johnson's long-stalled 10 per cent surtax proposal.

Foreign travel and economy measures to reduce the nation's growing balance-of-payments problem and the government's mushrooming budget deficit also will come before the Senate at the same time.

Sen. John Williams, Del. ranking Republican on the Senate Finance Committee, is setting the stage for these showdowns in a campaign to force Congress to face up to the nation's growing financial crisis.

Williams' maneuverings are designed to touch off the big Vietnam debate on who should pay for the continuing $30 billion-a-year war.

He believes Americans not fighting the war should share more of the burden and plans to raise the tax, travel and economy issues when legislation extending federal excise taxes on cars and telephones comes up next month.

Under Williams' proposal, an eight per cent surtax would be imposed on corporations, effective Jan. 1, 1968, and a six per cent surtax on individuals, effective April 1.

In addition to the proposed surtax and extension of excise taxes Williams' Vietnam "fiscal responsibility" package calls for Congress immediately to enact the following five-point program:

Mandatory reduction in spending for fiscal 1969 from $186 billion to $178 billion, an eight billion dollar cutback.

A freeze on federal civilian employment at the July 1, 1966, level of 2,738,047. Under this proposal no employees would be discharged, but reduction would be achieved through attrition.

A moratorium on all new public works and government construction projects for the duration of the war. The freeze would be similar to one ordered by President Truman during the Korean war.

Reduction from $100 to $25 of the amount of duty free goods which United States tourists can bring back into the country.

Authorization of the Treasury Department to sell to American tourists $1.4 billion in U.S. owned excess foreign currencies at a 10 per cent discount.

Under Williams' strategy, each of these proposals will be offered as amendments to the administration's excise tax extension bill when the $2.7 billion revenue measure reaches the Senate floor next month.

Nixon, Abe in step

NEW YORK — A Nixon fan, Evelyn Crane of Hollywood, Cal., taking note of a recent piece we did on the former vice president's loser image, sounds off loud and clear:

"In 1832 Abraham Lincoln lost an election to the Illinois General Assembly. In 1843 he lost an election for the House of Representatives. In 1854, he was defeated in a race for a seat in the Senate. In 1856, he was defeated in a bid for the nomination for vice president. In 1858 he lost his second bid for a seat in the Senate to Stephen Douglas, after their famous debates.

"Lincoln had five defeats, Nixon only one indisputable defeat, that as Governor of California, caused by dissension in the GOP. The hairbreadth defeat for president in 1960 is, of course, questionable, therefore cannot fairly be termed a defeat.

Several similarities

"Several similarities exist between Lincoln and Nixon. Both had youths of hardship. Both earned their educations under difficulties. Both revered the Constitution. Both engaged in famous debates which did not get them the offices they sought. Throughout their public life, each became the target of misrepresentation and depreciation.

"A favorite Lincoln Shakespearean quotation was: 'Sweet are the uses of adversity,' from 'As You Like It.' Adversity ennobled Lincoln; it preserved his innate humility and gave him the heart-understanding of the misfortunes of others. Those who have studied Nixon know that adversity has elevated him, too, and taught him his 'pearled' understanding of problems.

"It was Victor Hugo who mentioned the pearl as symbol of a gem that adversity created. The pearl starts as a grain of sand that enters the shell of the oyster. It exacerbates the tender oyster-flesh. To assuage its pain, the oyster exudes the sweat of its agony, covering the sand layer by layer. Thus is born the opalescent beauty of the pearl to enrich mankind.

"Theodore Roosevelt understood adversity when he said, 'It is not the critic who counts. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena, whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood, who spends himself in a worthy cause, who at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly. His place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who know neither victory nor defeat.'"

Take this doll to the convention with you, Dick, and let her nominate you.

Talk about Hepatitis

A moderate amount of panic seems to occur when a case of hepatitis is reported in a school, a camp or at home. Even though this inflammation of the liver is, in reality, no different than other infectious diseases, people become terrified and seem to "run" medically in all directions becoming more confused and anxious with every passing moment.

Perhaps the anxiety is due to a lack of knowledge of what hepatitis really is. Maybe we can clarify it and spare such unnecessary fears.

Hepatitis is an inflammation of the liver (hepar) which is caused by bacteria, viruses, toxic agents, drugs and heavy metals like lead and arsenic. Clearing fluid (carbon tetrachloride) may also be an offender.

Infectious hepatitis is sometimes called catarrhal or epidemic jaundice. It occurs frequently, especially in the summertime. Almost always the cause is a virus brought to the body through contaminated food or water.

The key word in most infectious hepatitis is contamination. It is for this reason that public health officials so scrupulously examine areas for water pollution, and so carefully inspect the areas where fish, shrimp, clams and oysters are obtained.

The yellowish discoloration of the skin and the eyeballs, known as jaundice, is usually visible to the naked eye. Sometimes hepatitis may be present without apparent jaundice. In these cases study of the blood will give positive evidence even before skin discoloration occurs.

There are a number of other causes for jaundice that may not really be related to infectious hepatitis. A large stone in one of the ducts leading from the gall bladder to the intestines may dam back the bile and cause jaundice.

Mononucleosis, yellow fever, malaria, brucellosis and pneumonia may give symptoms that resemble hepatitis. The discerning judgment of the physician and the story of the onset are very important for the diagnosis.

A special type of hepatitis sometimes follows a transfusion or the use of an unsterile syringe or instrument. Today the use of disposable syringes, which are used just once, has tremendously reduced this particular type of hepatitis. Instruments in doctors' offices and in hospitals and dental drills are sterilized by autoclaving with steam and are, therefore, rarely a cause for this condition.

Occasionally donors who generously supply blood are infected with a virus that causes hepatitis. They themselves may not know that they are ill and may have no symptoms of this disease. New techniques are constantly being developed by those who "bank" blood to insure the greatest safety that blood is free from contamination.

People who are in contact with a patient who comes down with hepatitis must usually have no real reason for concern unless they have eaten the same contaminated food.

NEW YORK — Benny Goodman was stopped by a cop driving to a concert for pupils of Brooklyn's George Gershwin Junior High; when Benny explained the cop let him go with, "That'll be my contribution to culture." Millionaire Serutan tycoon Matty Rosenhaus' wife died in Miami Beach Broadway's parade to

One of the nicest lads we ever met, Lt. Richard Pershing, grandson of WW I Gen. Black Jack Pershing was killed in Vietnam rescuing a buddy; our deepest sympathy and prayers go to his parents Warren and Momo Pershing. The terrible wind of today's violent news has blown both the NBC and CBS TV newscasts to high ratings that would keep a big budget series happily in renews.

Young girl at 6th & 48th featured a pair of denim pants — with sable cuffs (saw 'em personally).

Authorities have tried to hold the lid on this sordid tragedy but it won't work: politician was missing two days and when found dead of an overdose of heroin, was surrounded by porno — pictures of himself with men and women; and a dazed female in the weirdly decorated flat was hopped up. What ever happened to the truth.

American steel firms are irate about a rumor Japanese steel is to be used in the 102-story Trade Centre downtown; the builders wouldn't comment, CBS boss-of-bosses Bill Paley personally insisted the "Mannix" series be moved to late Saturday night because of "too much violence for early evening viewing."

NBC's "The Name of the Game" 90-minute series hired no fewer than 21 writers; it's about a magazine empire with five magazines' investigating reporters; plots and plots of work. All networks are hoping how sweet it'll be when Hershey's Chocolates start advertising for the first time in history. The gimmick: products must advertise to cage "shelf position," because supermarket — smarties discovered the public grabs pop-brands first.

Chic-chic Mary Wells Lawrence, who did so jaunty an ad job for Braniff Airlines the boss married her, has the inside-track to handle LBJ's campaign; it's expected to be a $25 million budget meaning $3,750,000 for some smart ad-cock which Mary is.

Our sympathies to old friend NBC-veep Syd Elges whose 86-year-old dad died in Pittsburgh. Sandy Dennis finished taping her first TV drama in years ("Hatful of Rain") and was asked how come her aversion; none, she explained, "It's just no one asked me."

Comedian Lou Marks (of Fisher & Marks) is fighting a serious pneumonia bout in a Philly (St. Luke's) Hospital.

Bobby Darin, whose nostalgia stretches way back to, say, the mid-Presley era, will write his memoirs; also will include advice to juveniles. Such as not being lippy?

Ann Margret gave Copa customers a tricky ogle-test: miniskirt and bare midriff. Jose Ferrer's threatening a nightclub career. Prospective Nat'l League umpires are asked, "Are you superstitious?" Heavyweight fighter Buster Mathis also wants a singing career. Copa star Tom Jones pays his orchestra conductor John Harris $1,000 a week.

Wave of future showbiz: the J. Helzer Circus & Ice Show's ticket sales have broken all records for the Indianapolis Fairgrounds Coliseum, we're advised — simply because supermarts there peddle admission to the show only by presentation of a soap powder boxtop. That's how sponsors someday will get around pay-TV fees.

Service set for Ash Wednesday

STROUDSBURG — Ash Wednesday services will be held at Zion United Church of Christ, today at 7:45 p. m. A special order of worship for personal dedication during Lent will be used entitled "Take Up The Cross".

Following the final portion of the worship hour, each person in attendance will receive a walnut wood cross which will serve as a reminder, throughout the days of Lent, of the promise of rededication to Christ made during the service.

The evening anthem, "Jesus, I My Cross Have Taken" by Brown will be sung by the Tenn Senior Choir with Miss Claudia Miller as soloist.

The sermon, "Scandal In Scarlet" by Rev. Marshall Ritu is the first in a series of six Lenten Mid-Week meditations entitled "Cross Examinations".

The theme of the series is concerned with an examination of the Cross of Christ as seen in the eyes of different types of people in Jesus' day as well as in our own modern times.

Tempura batter and a dipping sauce make shrimp a tasty meal

Have a busy skillet

Tempura retains flavor

By LINDA PIPHER
Pocono Record
Home Economist

STROUDSBURG — My electric skillet has been having old age blues for I've noticed that it doesn't heat up as fast and it seems as if it takes longer to cook foods. So when my mother asked us what Bill and I would like for Christmas I suggested an electric skillet, thinking that since Bill eats what I cook, he will indirectly benefit. (A psychology student can use this as a prime example of rationalization, I'm sure.)

Anyway, she let me choose the skillet, and this was quite a chore. You don't realize the variety of one kind of appliance on the market until you go to shop for one, but I do believe the second time around is easier. Having used one for sixteen years, I knew the good and bad features of the one I had.

I finally chose one that was at least twice as deep as the one I've had, with a high lid, for there were many times I regretted my old one was not deeper. I have used my skillet almost every night since Christmas and have been very happy with my selection.

One of our very favorite suppers is tempura for I don't think there is any better way to cook shrimp to get its fullest flavor. Since it cooks only about three minutes, it retains the flavor. The last few times I had cooked tempura in my old skillet it took too long to lightly brown the shrimp, so I was sure it was not heating properly. In my new skillet, it's been perfect. This is the basic batter:

Tempura Batter
1 egg, beaten
½ teaspoon salt
Three-fourths plus two tablespoons water
1 cup flour
Spoon ingredients lightly together. Dip shrimp and/or vegetables into batter and fry in 1½ inches hot oil (400 degrees) until light brown, 2 to 3 minutes. Drain and dip into sauce if desired.

When we cook tempura, I also have ready raw vegetables to dip into the batter. Most only take two to three minutes to cook, and again are so good because the quick cooking retains the natural flavor. We particularly like endive, fresh mushrooms, zucchini slices, egg plant strips, and cauliflower.

Have ready one of these sauces for dipping. I prefer the vegetables plain, but like to dip the seafood into a sauce.

Tempura Sauce
½ cup soy sauce
1 tablespoon white wine
½ cup water
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon powdered ginger
Warm mixture and use as dipping sauce for tempura.

Hot Shoyu Sauce
1 cup soy sauce
Two-thirds cup water
½ cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon grated onion
2 teaspoons corn starch
Blend all ingredients and heat to a light boil. Serve as dip for tempura.

Chinese Mustard
One-third cup dry mustard
1 tablespoon salad oil
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons water (or flat beer or wine); Mix until smooth and serve in dipping bowl.

I should mention, too, that other seafoods are good cooked in tempura batter, particularly scallops and crabmeat chunks.

I don't think there is any other electrical appliance that is as versatile as the skillet. I use it for so many different things, and I hope that you do, too. If you have never tried to bake in it, do, for the even heat is just as good as your oven. It can not brown, for it lacks the top unit (unless your new skillet has this) of the oven. Using a box of cake mix, this good upside cake is a cinch in the skillet. It's particularly good warm, so time it accordingly.

Student from Colombia speaker at WSCS meeting

STROUDSBURG — A student from Colombia described her country and also her impressions of Monroe County at the meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Arlington Wesley Methodist Church.

Miss Luz Patricia Guevara, now enrolled at Pleasant Valley High School told of her country, its important cities and industries. Coffee is one of the largest exports, she pointed out, and is well advertised over the major TV networks.

The people of Colombia are very interested in sports with bull fighting being quite popular she said.

Now living at the Dorshimer home, Miss Guevara will next live with Dr. and Mrs. Robert Arner and in another home before she returns to her own country. She is 17 years old and was graduated with her class in Bogota. She will also graduate in June at Pleasant Valley. She arrived here in November.

"It has been a wonderful experience to come and study," she said saying that she has found the people very friendly. Through an international fellowship she was able to select the country but not the school in which she wished to study.

Schools in Bogota differ from those in the United States in the fact that boys and girls are separated. She has had more mathematics in her senior year at Pleasant Valley than she did at home. On her return in June to her own country she will be majoring in Economics.

Mrs. Ward Conover opened the meeting with devotions. The president, Mrs. David Ward, conducted the business meeting. They donated $10 to Church Women United to purchase material for the clothing center of the Volunteer service.

They also voted $20 donation for the Ingathering to be held March 28 in Pen Argyl.

The WSCS will sponsor a demonstration party at the church on Thursday, March 14, at 8 p.m. to which members are urged to bring guests. A Spring rummage sale will be held April 25 and 26 at 314 Main St., Stroudsburg. Those willing to help are asked to sign up at the church.

At the March meeting Miss Mary Jane Serfass will show slides of her visit to Europe.

Violence, race hatred, war classed as obscenities

EAST STROUDSBURG — "When the word 'obscenity' is mentioned, many people think of it only in relation to sex. There are other types of obscenity to which we become so desensitized that we don't recognize them as being obscene," Rev. John Bendix, an assistant pastor at St. Matthew's Catholic Church, warned members of the Altar and Rosary Society of the parish.

He defined obscenity as "something disgusting to the senses, or abhorrent to morality and virtue." He described three main areas as being obscene: violence and brutality, racial animosity, and glorification of war. All of them, he said, are "abhorrent to morality and virtue."

He defined morality as the transformation of people into persons.

Stroudsburg WSCS hears Dr. Nwokorie

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg Methodist WSCS held a covered dish dinner-meeting, with families invited, as their February meeting.

The program featured Dr. Iheanacho Nwokorie, a Fulbright Exchange Scholar at ESSC, on leave of absence from the University of Lagos in Nigeria. His topic was "Africa Seeks A New Identity", a first hand account of the people of Africa.

Mrs. William Fizells presented the program and Mrs. Elwood Arndt led devotions. Several selections were sung by a quartet made up of members of the WSCS: Mrs. Walter Massie, Mrs. George Sebring, Mrs. James Toner, and Mrs. Richard Seip.

The hostesses were, Miss Mary Ball, Mrs. Harold Carlton, Mrs. Robert Haigh, Miss Dorothy Keller, Mrs. Clement Price, Mrs. John Pyle, Mrs. Robert Rasely, Mrs. George Sebring, Jr., Mrs. Robert Titus, and Mrs. Raymond Welsh.

Band Mothers planning for regional chorus

EAST STROUDSBURG — Housing plans for the regional chorus festival members, to be held in East Stroudsburg on March 21, 22 and 23, were discussed at the February meeting of the East Stroudsburg Area Band Mothers held in the chorus room of the high school.

Robert Zellner, director, reported that the Junior High Band will make a trip to Lewisburg where they will present a concert at Lewisburg High School in the morning and in the new chapel at Susquehanna University at night.

The Band Mothers will participate in the Wyckoff Fashion Show in April with Mary Werkheiser and Nancy Rine as co-chairmen. Tickets are available from any Band Mother.

Entertainment featured a trumpet solo by Jeff Saussier, accompanied by David Williams.

At the business meeting, Mrs. Joseph Kernaghan, president, announced the Deanery convention to be held at Marywood College on April 20 and the World Day of Prayer service to be held March 1 at 1:30 at Zion United Church of Christ, Stroudsburg.

Mrs. Kernaghan also made a plea for Volunteer Services of Church Women United. Among the needed items are towels and green and yellow trading stamps. Those with donations may call Mrs. Arthur Henning.

Mrs. James Kovacs, Mrs. Clifford Petersen and Mrs. Ralph Vecchio Sr. were named to the nominating committee. Plans for the May 22 dinner were discussed.

Mrs. G. B. Dalessio, program chairman, announced that Capt. Rex Worthy of the Salvation Army will speak at the March 20 meeting.

The tea table was decorated in the theme of the Sacred Heart, with red and white flowers flanked by red candles. Hostesses were Mrs. John Sysko and Mrs. Howard Gunn.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

There's one sure thing; if you're a worrier, there's plenty to worry about even if you reach that enviable state where there's nothing very pressing about your own personal worries. Of course, we've temporarily worried ourselves out of worrying about the atom bomb in the more immediate worries about the war in Vietnam and inflation or the prospect of summer riots.

Of course those are sort of generalized worries, but there are more specialized worries closer to home. The other night I lost about four hours sleep worrying over the 81-year-old woman picked up for stealing a spool of thread and the 17-year-old boy picked up charged with possession of marijuana.

Worry, I told myself sternly, is foolish unless there's something constructive you can do about it and went right on worrying. Maybe I'm just at the worrying age, I thought in resignation.

But I guess there are no age limits on worry. One of

YMCA sets high goals for drive

STROUDSBURG — "Set your goals high. Don't settle for a quota. Keep in step with the progress in Monroe County." That's what Robert L. Clark, chairman of the 1968 Monroe County YMCA drive, urged more than 90 volunteer "crusaders" heading into the second week of the Y's membership campaign.

The second report meeting of the membership drive workers will be held at the Stroudsburg YMCA Thursday night, starting at 6:30 o'clock. Dinner will be served by the YMCA's Women's Service Group.

The goal for the campaign is 800 memberships. At the first report meeting last week 395 memberships were reported.

"Thursday's session will tell whether we will hit our goal," Clark said. "We must have a good report from the 'crusaders' to be able to get a tight hold on the 800 figure."

Richard Frantz, president of the YMCA in Monroe County, will be the principal speaker at Thursday's meeting.

Man seeks more than $10,000

Fire company sued over accident

STROUDSBURG — A Bethlehem man has filed suit in Monroe County Court seeking in excess of $10,000 as the result of an accident allegedly suffered at a Pocono Township Volunteer Fire Company carnival in the summer of 1965.

According to the suit filed Tuesday Steward N. Wachter, Bethlehem RD 2, is claiming the alleged damages against a trio of defendants, the Pocono Township Volunteer Fire Co., Ace Canvas Corp., Jersey City, N.J. and Herman Leist, Leist Amusements, Allentown.

According to the plaintiff he had worked at the carnival that ran from July 18 to July 23, 1966 when the alleged accident occurred.

The complaint states that the fire company had contracted Leist on Jan. 30, 1966 to erect and operate amusement ride devices and a pop corn concession and a pair of other concessions during the carnival whereas 25 per cent of the gross would go to the fire company and the remaining percentage to Leist.

The fire company also allegedly had an agreement with Ace Canvas Corp. to furnish and erect a number of tents on the carnival grounds which housed some of the attractions.

According to the Plaintiff he was authorized by Leist to operate the popcorn stand with the understanding that Wachter would retain the profits in exchange for the rental of a giant searchlight owned by the plaintiff.

Plaintiff also claims that both defendants Ace and Leist set up, constructed, and maintained their amusements and booths in a negligent manner causing plaintiff to trip over a stake and cause several injuries and loss of money.

Wachter claims the stakes were placed in dark and improperly lighted places, there was insufficient lighting in the area, and defendants failed to maintain competent and proper inspection and supervision of the booths.

Plaintiff claims that he suffered a fracture of the femur, and injuries that required hospitalization and an operation.

Wachter also claims he lost $2,200 in wages as a result of the injuries and is seeking in excess of $10,000 from defendants.

Philip H. Williams is attorney for the plaintiff.

Chest to pro-rate deficits

STROUDSBURG — The stake of the member agencies in the success of the Monroe County Community Chest drive will be reckoned in dollars and cents in the future.

At the meeting of the directors of the Community Chest and Council Tuesday afternoon, it was voted that, in case the fund drive does not achieve the amount of the budget the deficit will be pro-rated among the member agencies.

The action came following the presentation and discussion of the report of the ad hoc committee headed by Clifford Gillam. The committee was requested by the director at the January meeting to discuss the best way to deal with the problem of continuing deficits.

Although each campaign has exceeded the amount raised in the year before, for the past four years, the campaign has also fallen short of its goal. While the increase in budget has amounted to about $7,000 a year, the increase in giving has only amounted to about $4,200 a year.

Deficit
In the past, this deficit has been made up by taking from the contingency fund sufficient funds to meet the amount delegated to each agency.

However, such continuing action could deplete the contingency fund to the level where it could not meet the real emergency conditions for which it was designed. It was this problem which the ad hoc committee was asked to consider and recommend a solution.

In the report of the committee, two possibilities were rejected: that of setting a ceiling on the amount of increase which could be budgeted in any one year; or that of post-funding, that is distributing allocations only after the campaign had ended.

Instead, the committee recommended that the present practice of agency allocations being made after study and review of their requests by the budget committee be continued. But that, following the campaign, any deficit will be deducted from agency appropriations on a pro rata basis.

Salvation Army unveils plans for new building

EAST STROUDSBURG — The proposed new Salvation Army Corps headquarters for the county cleared its first hurdle yesterday when the Monroe County Community Chest and Council gave its approval to a projected capital funds campaign for 1969.

In the first public presentation of the project, the site on Washington Street on land formerly occupied by the East Stroudsburg Lumber Co. was announced with the target date for the campaign March-June, 1969; and the maximum cost, $400,000.

HOME FROM VIETNAM

Marion Gayle's bowling score with the Ronson Ladylite team was shattered Tuesday night when her husband Walter, with the 42nd Airborne Div., unexpectedly walked into Colonial Lanes to watch her bowl.

Hugs and kisses later the Ladylites went on to win their match by a single pin, as Walter, fresh from Vietnam on a 30-day leave, watched.

It was the biggest surprise ever.

CAR FULL OF FLAGS

The car full of flags, halted by the State Police, wasn't on its way to a demonstration. In fact, nothing could have been more respectable.

It was the Red Cross station wagon full of flags of all states of the United States, borrowed from the Tobyhanna Army Depot to form a colorful background for the "Fashions for the American Beauty" benefit for the heart fund at the college.

notified of the acceptance of this recommendation.

Other recommendations of the committee concerning increased efforts to establish payroll deduction contributions in the industrial plants of the community, and earlier start of the industrial campaign, and closer cooperation in campaign activities with agency boards were discussed and referred to the 1968-69 Fund Campaign Chairman John H. Parker.

Dr. Nathan Meyer, new president of the Chest, presided at the meeting held at 3 p.m. in the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

The directors also approved a capital fund campaign projected by the Salvation Army for 1969, details of which are carried in the accompanying report.

The building and floor plans of a Salvation Army building in a community roughly comparable to Monroe County were included in the presentation.

Capt. Rex Worthy, local executive, outlined the problems at the present Salvation Army Citadel on South Courtland Street.

With 600 persons a week using the building, school buses have been drafted for classrooms, a converted storage room on the third floor is dangerous in case of fire.

He also noted that the entire area is projected for demolition under existing re-development plans.

The Salvation Army services families, youths, transients as well as serving as a focal point for emergency needs and disaster services for the entire county area, he said.

In the new building, a family welfare bureau could be incorporated in the new administrative area with adequate private counseling space.

A complete emergency and service kitchen area is also high in priority for the proposed building.

Budgets for the initial capital program will be formulated, he said, with a maximum of $400,000 for the erection and equipping of the new property.

Major Hartwell Fleming of Philadelphia pointed out the necessity for community approval of the project.

"The Salvation Army understands its responsibility to the community in case of any capital campaign of this nature," he said. "It will not approve a campaign if funding it is not feasible, practical or if it is not needed in the community."

"Any such expansion must be a joint community effort," he stressed. "We have set up no hard and fast plans, and these tentative plans may undergo many modifications, with consideration of extended funding, increased operating costs and the limitations of the community."

He referred the group to the feasibility study made by the Plubell Company of Buffalo, N.Y., which confirmed and documented the acute need for new and expanded facilities.

The approval of the funding agency, in this case The Monroe County Community Chest, is necessary before the project is authorized by the Salvation Army, he said.

It was this approval that the directors voted yesterday.

In the information booklet, "Blueprint for Tomorrow," among the projected space and facilities were a large Youth Club room, a large multipurpose recreational room; 18 group activity rooms; a Golden Age group area; auditorium and chapel area, music room and nursery room, all of which could be used for combined classrooms or special activity areas.

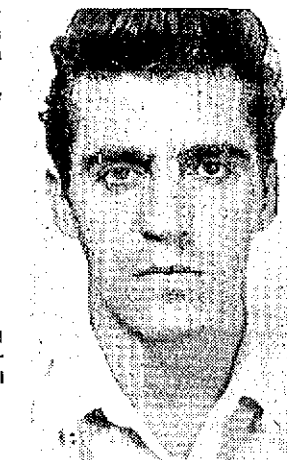

In addition, documented needs included administrative office area and reception room; complete toilet and shower-locker rooms, kitchen and food area, mechanical and utility room, and storage accommodation.

It is estimated that space requirements should be established at 10,000 to 20,000 square feet.

For the purpose of study, a contemporary Corps building in Rome, N.Y., is included in the presentation. Built in 1965 the total construction cost was $128,000, and the total project cost was $300,424.

Its chapel can accommodate approximately 220 persons. It includes a gymnasium of 3,200 square feet, a game room of 3,200 square feet and a general purpose room of 2,560 feet.

One advantage of the local location, it was pointed out, is that its backyard adjoins the East Stroudsburg Playground and can be reached by children without crossing any streets or thoroughfares.

State police Tuesday continued their search for John J. "Bucky" Kolosensky, above, who fled the Luzerne County Jail more than a week ago. He was last seen Saturday in the Blakeslee area. He has a scar on the bridge of his nose. (State police photo)

PV board withdraws court suit

BRODHEADSVILLE — The Pleasant Valley School Board has decided not to answer a complaint entered in Monroe County Court by the Pleasant Valley Education Association over a salary dispute.

After Judge Arlington W. Williams struck down preliminary objections to the complaint the board had 20 days to file an answer.

Pleasant Valley School Board president John Rinker said the move was one of "conciliation" toward the PVEA.

The teacher group, however, still has the complaint pending in court requesting the court to force the school board to set up a panel to discuss salary differences. The PVEA must now decide whether it will drop the original complaint to continue with the proceedings.

PVEA president Roger Arnold said he will discuss a future course of action with PVEA attorney Maxwell H. Cohen.

At the risk of being termed an "isolationist," this reporter would like to go on record as being in favor of pulling out of Vietnam, lock, stock and barrel, to use a trite phrase, at once.

Why? The reason is unequivocally simple: we are meddling in the internal affairs of another nation.

Whether by invitation of one faction, or previous commitments by former administrations, the fact remains: we have no business in Vietnam and are paying a tremendous price in American lives, in addition to American dollars, for an action that is illegal, immoral and unjust.

The billions of dollars that are being poured into the civil war by this country might well be used for humanitarian causes. Food, medicine, education and housing in this country as well as impoverished areas abroad are never-ending problems of mankind. These merit attention, almost without limit.

War is war.

But the United States is not at war. We were not attacked.

Haddon explains petitions

Residents oppose refuse site

STROUDSBURG — A number of petitions are currently being circulated protesting a sanitary landfill site being considered by three area municipalities.

According to John C. Haddon, Stroudsburg R.D. 2, a petition is being circulated by him as "an interested landowner" in the proposed site area.

He said the move to petition the municipalities was made by the La-Re-Do Land Corp., owners of a development near the site.

The planned site area, if approved by East Stroudsburg, Stroudsburg, and Stroud Township, is owned by John A. Brislin in Stroud Township and is near the Shafer's School House Road.

Brislin is offering the near 10-acre site to the municipalities at a rental cost of $12,000 over a five-year period at $2,400 per year.

According to Haddon another two petitions are also being circulated protesting the landfill site.

The petition currently has 45 signatures of persons in all three municipalities.

The petition is being circulated on the grounds that the operation will constitute a "general nuisance" in the area in that there will be a continuous daily exposure of garbage and refuse and a considerable amount of loose paper in the surrounding area.

The petition also states that the amount of trucking in and out of the area will cause considerable dust and noise and the operation of land moving equipment in the area which will be annoying and obnoxious to the residents.

The petitioners are claiming the value of the surrounding properties will depreciate and such an operation will bring to a virtual "standstill" the development of building in this area which will result in a tax loss to the Township of Stroud in that people will build their homes in other communities rather than in Stroud Township.

Haddon said that in his opinion the solution to the problem is to seek an alternate site. He said that he will personally seek information from real estate brokers to determine if other land is available.

New York firm files complaint

STROUDSBURG — Judgment of $204 against a local firm was sought by the Ceehware Commodore Co. of Long Island City, N.Y., according to a suit filed in the Monroe County Court Of Common Pleas Tuesday by Stroudsburg attorney Maxwell Cohen.

Ex-commissioner objects to change in county minutes

STROUDSBURG — Former Monroe County Commissioner Stuart F. Pipher objected Tuesday to a change in official minutes made by the newly elected commissioners on minutes of Dec. 28 meeting relating specifically to a binder for the continuation of the county's insurance coverage.

In Tuesday's letter to Elwood Hintz, chairman of the Monroe County Commissioners, Pipher said:

"I do not approve of the change made in the minutes and I think I made my position clear on Dec. 28, 1967. I desire that my objection also be noted in the minutes. I cannot see where you have a right to alter our minutes."

Pipher is the unopposed candidate for Democratic county chairman. The fact that the minutes were amended was reported in The Record Jan. 3.

Pipher was referring to the first meeting of the new board, Jan. 2.

The minutes of that meeting read, in part: "Dec. 28 minutes approved with one exception, the county's blanket insurance coverage; the minutes were corrected to read: 'It was agreed that the incoming board contact Small Insurance Agency pertaining to the binder," instead of more or less assumed that the incoming board contact the present carrier and secure a binder covering a stated period after the present expiration date.

Pipher specifically objects to the phrase, "It was agreed," since, he claims he did not agree with the outgoing chairman, Stanley Rader. The third member of the old board, John N. Price, was not present at the meeting.

Pipher said the new board had no authority to amend the minutes of the outgoing board, and that the new board's action was contrary to an elementary rule of parliamentary procedure.

Hintz, when advised by The Record last night of the contents of the letter, said, "Mr. Pipher's certainly entitled to his feelings, there's a lot to be said on both sides. I feel the county is in good hands as far as insurance coverage goes."

He added that Pipher's action in giving out the letter to The Record before the commissioners received it was "probably a little more unethical" than the question of changing the minutes.

Hello mom, Vietnam calling

STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Rolland E. Duncan of 445 N. Eighth St., Stroudsburg, heard the telephone ring last Wednesday about 3:30 a.m.

She arose, answered it and heard the voice on the other end say, "This is MARS in San Diego, Calif. I have your son David on the radio and he would like to talk to you."

David is in Vietnam.

Six boys to defend championships in PSCC tourney

By TED WISMER

Record Sports Editor

EAST STROUDSBURG — Six defending champions — four of them from pre-tournament favorite Lock Haven — will be on hand Friday when the PSCC wrestling championships open a two-day run in the Koehler Field House.

The 1967 kingpins back include ESSC's Gary Cook; Joe Gerst of Bloomsburg and Lock Haven's Ken Melchoir, Shane Foley, John Smith and John Blacksmith.

ESSC wrestling coach Red Witman, who is also the tournament director, has announced that for the first three sessions four mats will be in use. Witman said, "With this many bouts and boys it's possible to run off the preliminaries and quarterfinals in the time it takes for a dual meet."

An additional 1,000 seats have been borrowed from Lehigh University, swelling the number of seats to almost 3,500. Witman said, "The extra seats were added not for the sake of additional revenue but we're trying to accommodate as many fans as possible."

The tournament schedule is as follows: Friday, 2 p.m. — preliminaries; 7 p.m. — quarterfinals; Saturday, 1 p.m. — semi-finals immediately followed by the first and second round consolation; 7 p.m. — consolation finals on two mats; 8:15 — championship bouts.

With the exception of California and Slippery Rock, all of the other 12 teams are expected to enter full teams.

With the help of Witman, we will attempt to give a run-down of the 11 weight classes. It should be pointed out that little is known about some of the Western schools and Witman is going for the most part on past performances.

115 — Ken Melchoir of Lock

Haven is the defending champion and has to be given the nod. Other standouts are Heim, Bloomsburg, second last year; Day of Clairon, third and Frankie Coco of East Stroudsburg, fourth. A sleeper could be Nader of Shippensburg.

123 — Foley has to get the nod here with Biglano of Millersville and Blaust of Shippensburg also rated a good chance to place. If healthy Chuck Joseph of Kutztown can't be overlooked.

130 — ESSC's Ned Bushong has lost only one dual meet and has been tied by Lock Haven's Bob Larson. Another contender is Grabfelder of Bloomsburg who dropped an 11-10 decision to Larson.

137 — Ron Russo of Bloomsburg appears to be the top boy in this class although the Warriors' Jim Purdy has been very impressive in practice and must be rated as a top contender. Also rated a good chance to place are Moran of Lock Haven and Bell of Kutztown.

Ken Melchoir

145 — The best bet in this class is Jerry McDonald of ESSC but he injured a knee in practice this week and is questionable. Other tough boys are Teagarden, Clarion; Jeff Connor, Millersville and Steve Peters, Bloomsburg.

152 — This is the toughest class in the tournament. Gerst, has lost to Dan Rossi of ESSC who in turn was held to a draw by Klingaman of Lock Haven. Gerst then beat Klingaman, 6-1. Then you have Neibel of Clarion, last year's runner-up and Marly Gruver of Shippensburg, who could whip the entire field.

160 — Jim Blacksmith of Lock Haven gets the nod if he's in this class. Arnie Thompson, Bloomsburg sophomore from Washington, N.J., has been looking tough while ESSC's Chris Greening could place if his knee is sound. Clarion of California has also been doing well. Millersville's Ron Teepak has also been winning most of his bouts.

167 — Smith gains the nod although he'll have to contend with Al Detweiler of ESSC and Jim Coleman of Bloomsburg.

177 — There's nobody in the PSCC to compare with Cook. Bill Radford of Lock Haven won a PSCC title back in the early 1960s before entering the service.

191 — The best of this field appears to be Jones of Bloomsburg. His stiffest competition is expected to come from Bettlinger of Mansfield; Powell of California, who lost in the finals at heavyweight to ESSC's Roy Miller; and Bob Metz of Lock Haven, third in the unlimited last year.

Heavyweight — ESSC's unbeaten sophomore Rich Schumacher gets the vote. Another standout is big Bob Janet of Bloomsburg.

Palmer calling it quits — by degrees

NEW YORK (AP) — Arnold Palmer, golf's greatest money winner, is calling it quits—by degrees.

"Don't misunderstand me," the muscular millionaire cautioned Tuesday. "I hope to be around for a long time."

"But I'm easing out, as of now."

"You might call it a phasing out operation. I'll be getting out, but I'm going to do it in a way that no one will notice. I'll just drop a tournament here, take a rest there. But I'll be around for the big ones."

"Look, I play 14 or 15 tournaments a year. Maybe more, I'll just cut down a little at a time."

Does that mean that the fierce desire is no longer there?

"Not at all," the Latrobe, Pa., strongman said. "I think I want to win as much now as I ever did. Maybe even more."

"It's just that the time comes when you have to start thinking about easing off."

"You know, you just can't get charged up week after week, tournament after tournament. I don't mean the big ones, the Masters, the (U.S.) Open. But week after week you just can't do it."

"This way, I'll be able to point for a tournament more. I'll be able to do the things I need to do to get ready. It really should help me."

Palmer, closing in on 39 and in his 15th year as a touring pro, has won most of the world's golfing honors and has parlayed his game into a fortune.

Palmer hasn't won a major tournament—the Open, British Open, Masters or PGA—since the 1964 Masters. But he disagrees with a critics who hint he may be over the hill.

"I don't think so. Not at all," he said.

"I think I'm playing as well as I ever did. I'm winning my share of the tournaments. I'm just not winning the big ones. I'm finishing second instead of first. But I'm still playing well."

Mantle inks 6th $100,000 pact

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Mickey Mantle, veteran star of the New York Yankees, signed his sixth consecutive $100,000 contract Tuesday and promptly set his sights on moving into third place on the all-time home run list.

"I think I can hit 30 home runs. I don't think that's out of the question," said the 36-year-old Mantle, who made a successful transition last season from center field to first base.

Mantle hit 22 homers last year, giving him a lifetime total of 518. Ahead of him are Babe Ruth with 714, Willie Mays 564, Jimmy Fox 534 and Ted Williams, 521. Of the four, only Mays is still playing.

Mantle, who will be starting his 18th season with the Yanks, posted a .245 batting mark — his career low — in 1967. He played in 144 games, though, more than any other member of the team.

He is not proud of his performance. "I can't do any worse than last year," he said. "In some games, I think I was hurting the team by playing. This year I'll settle for about 125 games."

The three-time American League Most Valuable Player speculated that he would play about five innings during the exhibition games.

"There's still a lot I've got to learn about playing first base," he said. "But I'm going to take it a little easier this spring. A year ago, I worked harder and then pulled a leg muscle in the opening game of the season. I don't want that to happen again."

Mantle isn't sure how long he will continue as a player. "Of course, I'd like to keep playing. When I do quit, it's going to be a hard thing to do," he said.

Boycott by 32 countries may force special meeting

LONDON (AP) — A move to call a special meeting of the International Olympic Committee to discuss the 32-nation boycott caused by South Africa's readmission to the games is building up, Olympic officials said Tuesday.

Giulio Onesti, president of the Italian Olympic Committee, has asked Avery Brundage, IOC president, to call a special meeting and other delegates are prepared to back up the request, officials said.

Brundage has said he saw no possibility of a meeting being called, but IOC rules state that a meeting must be held if one-third of the 71-nation body requests it.

Monday, 32 African nations withdrew from the games, scheduled for Oct. 12-27 in Mexico City, to protest South Africa's participation.

South Africa was barred from the 1964 games because of its racial policies, but was readmitted this year after promising to send an integrated team. Trials for the team will be segregated, however.

The Marquess of Exeter, an influential member of the IOC, agreed with Brundage that no special meeting should be held.

"We had exhaustive debates on the re-entry of South Africa," he said. "We took a postal vote on the issue and the vote was substantially in favor of South Africa's re-entry."

In Brussels, however, the president of the Belgian Olympic Committee, deplored the way the readmission of South Africa to the games had been handled.

May Raoul Mollet said, "I personally deplore the policy followed by the International Olympic Committee in this instance."

"I strongly believe they acted lightly in being satisfied with nothing more than a vote by mail on such an important question instead of debating the problem."

The big question still hanging over the controversy is: Will Russia join the Africa boycott? There have been indications that the Soviets might pull out in sympathy with the Africans, but no official decision has yet been made.

UCLA trio won't try for Olympics

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Lew Alcindor, Lucius Allen and Mike Warren, all stars on UCLA's defending NCAA champion basketball team, rejected invitations to compete in the Olympic Trials, the NCAA announced Tuesday.

In disclosing the action of the three UCLA players, the NCAA also announced its 48-man squad for the trials.

The NCAA said no UCLA players were included because the three players turned down the bids.

The squad does include Elvin Hayes, top man for Houston's No. 1-ranked Cougars, although Hayes earlier had indicated he might pass up the Olympics for an early start in pro ball.

Walter Byers, NCAA executive director, said the squad was being announced early because of premature disclosure that no UCLA players are included.

Byers explained that the eight-man NCAA Olympic Basketball Committee after careful screening compiled a list of 145 to 150 players. Then the committee contacted the athletic department at each school to determine whether it nominees would be available for the trials.

Byers said it is anticipated that all 48 of the players will accept the invitations. The squad includes 33 players from the university division and 15 from the college division.

Miss Manning top girl of '67

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Madeline Manning of Tennessee State is the outstanding girl athlete of 1967, in the opening of the AAU.

She was given a special award at the National AAU Indoor Track and Field Championships Saturday night.

Miss Manning, who holds the American and Oakland Arena records for the 800, won that event a second successive time at the AAU meet.

The AAU said she was chosen for the award because she won the 800 at both the outdoor and indoor AAU meets and in the Commonwealth, Pan-American and Europe-United States meets last year.

3 Ferraris enter Sebring

MODENA, Italy (AP) — Luigi Chinetti, director of the North American racing team of New York, said here Monday he had entered three Ferrari racing cars in the Sebring, Fla. 12-hour race March 23-24. The cars are owned by the team.

He also said he planned to enter a number of Ferraris owned by his team in the 24-hour race of Le Mans, France, June 15-16. The Ferrari team is not officially participating in either of the two races.

ESSC needs two wins to tie best record since mid '40s

EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg State basketball team, currently 11-19, will equal the best record for a Warrior hoop squad since World War II if it can win its remaining two games on the schedule, Bloomsburg and Lock Haven. In 1960 the ESSC team managed 13 wins but no other team can boast such a record since the mid 1940's.

Against visiting Bloomsburg tonight at 8, the Warriors will have their work cut out for them. In their first encounter, the Huskies came out on the long end of a 87-74 count. The rebounding was about equal and the Warriors actually scored more field goals, but at the charity stripe, Bloomsburg hit 27 for 40 as compared to ESSC's 6 for 13 effort.

Bloomsburg is in second place behind Cheyney in conference standings and sports a 13-6 record. Bob Mantusa and Bob Snyder hurt the Warriors the most offensively by scoring 22 and 19 points respectively. ESSC Coach Ken Sisson will go with his regular lineup of Steve Guter, Fred Baalz, Ben Kizer, John Grobely, and Willie Shields, and hopes that his shooters will be able to mount a formidable attack against the Bloomsburg zone.

Lemaster signs

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Pitcher Denny Lemaster agreed to contract terms with the Houston Astros today as the National League club opened spring training camp at Cocoa, Fla.

There had been indication earlier of a stalemate between the Astros and the left-hander they acquired from Atlanta after the 1967 season ended. The club gave no details.

Moe in fold

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Moe Drabowsky, a bullpen hero in the 1966 World Series and a mainstay of the sixth-place Baltimore Orioles last season, has signed his American League contract for 1968.

Dabrowsky, 32, received a reported raise to about $30,000 after posting a 7-5 record.

The tournament is open to all amateur wrestlers; high school, college, armed services, and other registered AAU contestants. The entry fee will be $2.00 for those registering before Wednesday, March 27. Late entries will be accepted until the close of weigh-ins with a $3.00 entry fee. Weigh-ins will be from 12:00 noon until 6:45 p.m. Friday, and 7:00 until 10:00 a.m. Saturday. An additional round will be allowed the second day.

Profits from the tournament will be divided between the service projects of the fraternity and a donation to the United States Olympic Committee. A permanent plaque will be placed in Koehler Field House listing the tournament champions.

Trophies will be awarded for first, second, third and fourth places. Trophies will also be awarded for fastest pin, most pins, and outstanding wrestler. There will be trophies for the first and second place teams. A team may enter as many men as desired, but only the eleven highest scoring men will be counted in the team total, regardless of weight classes.

The sessions of the tournament will be: Friday night 7:30; Saturday noon; and Saturday night, 7:30. Four mats will be used to accommodate the large field that is expected. General admission will be 50 cents for Friday night; 50 cents Saturday noon; and $1.00 for Saturday night finals. A combination reserved seat for all three sessions will be $3.00, or individual sessions $2.00 finals, $1.00 other sessions.

Wrestling will be in accordance with NCAA rules and matches will be six minutes long. All of the losers to the two finalists will wrestle back for third and fourth places. Tights will not be required but other NCAA uniform regulations will be enforced.

On Saturday morning before the noon session and in the afternoon when mat space is available, officials will be provided for challenge matches, giving an opportunity to those wrestlers who have been eliminated to wrestle additional matches. Also Olympic and college wrestling movies will be shown Saturday morning for those who are interested. Reduced priced housing is being made available by the community motels and arrangements are being made for meals in the dining hall and snack area of the field house.

John Sladin will serve as Tournament Director. Coach Clyde "Red" Witman has been named Tournament Advisor.

His sweetheart Louise, of course.

TELEBARGAIN? Sure, because the telephone's one of the happiest bargains in the family budget.

Today you can call anywhere in the country for $1.00 or less* after 7 PM every evening and all day Saturday and Sunday.

Miss someone? Ask Harry how fast a phone call can remedy that. Then call your Louise tonight... Mom, Pop, Uncle Al, or anyone else you love. And remember—every time you use the phone, it's a TELEBARGAIN.

Opening lead — king of clubs.

The "backward finesse" is a play very seldom used but highly effective when the proper circumstances arise

"Backward" refers to the unusual direction in which the finesse is taken, not the declarer's intelligence.

Today's hand illustrates the principle. Let's say you're declarer at four spades and West leads three rounds of clubs. You ruff and play the queen of spades, East taking the ace and returning a spade.

After drawing East's last trump, you are faced with the problem of avoiding a heart loser.

Ordinarily, this would not be much of a problem. You would play a low heart to the king, return a heart, and finesse the jack. The method of play would normally succeed about half the time. It would fail in the present deal because West has the queen.

But you can tell from the bidding that the normal way of playing the hearts is destined to fail. First, West would be unlikely to open the bidding without the queen of hearts, and second, this view is strongly fortified by East's pass. It is highly unlikely that East would pass one club if he had both the ace of spades and queen of hearts.

You should therefore invoke

the backward finesse. You intending to finesse. If West

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 2-26

Erma Bombeck

Hunt for car keys

We have a standard ritual at our house that occurs every time we go bye-bye in the car. It's called, "Find Mama's Car Keys."

Actually, it's an orderly exercise. Everyone is experienced, knows his territory and goes silently about the business at hand. My husband had never seen this phenomenon until the other day.

"Okay, group," I shouted, "who wants to go to the shopping center?" Without conversation or fanfare, they swung into action like a Hessian drill team. My daughter mechanically proceeded to the car in the driveway where she checked the ignition, felt between the cushions, and tipped the sun visor. Then she checked the trunk lock and on the way in felt around the base of the taxus (this once paid off), the top of the mailbox and the front door lock. "Search negative," she reported.

Number one son marched briskly and efficiently to the kitchen where he ran his fingers across the mantle, flashed a light behind the stove and the refrigerator, looked on the telephone stand and rummaged through the wood box. "Car keys negative!" he shouted.

Last Hope

Now, the last hope of getting out of the driveway rested upon the frail shoulders of number two son. He usually struck pay dirt as his bailiwick was pockets of coats and jackets, all the handbags and the desk. "Nothing," he reported.

"Okay, kids," I shouted, "now, we go to Operation Red!"

My husband could stand it no longer. "What does that mean?"

"That means we all stand in a circle and pretend if we were car keys and hiding from someone, where would we hide."

"Good Lord," he muttered.

"Don't laugh," I cautioned. "We once found them in the freezer. Another time in the bedroom register. And once we found them on that little wooden plaque you hung on the wall marked, keys. We liked to have died looking for them that day."

He interrupted again, "Did you ever consider keeping them on your person?"

No pockets

"And just where do you think I'd store them... up my nose? Women don't have pockets like men do."

"I don't see how you women do it," he said. "If men were this inefficient they'd be bankrupt in six months. Not being able to keep track of a simple car key. What do you think would happen if the U.S. government were this absent-minded?"

"They'd have lost track of eight hydrogen bombs in the Arctic Circle, instead of four?"

He stood up and said quietly, "Let's see now. If I were a car key, I'd hide in the clothes hamper!"

Tax return necessary for refund

STROUDSBURG — You will not automatically receive a refund of tax withheld from your wages unless you file a tax return, said Seymour I. Friedman, district director of Internal Revenue for Eastern Pennsylvania.

A tax return is not required when the gross income received during the year is less than $600, Friedman said, but a return must be filed to obtain a refund of any federal tax withheld.

This advice applies particularly to students and other persons who worked only a part of the year.

Forms 1040 and 1040A must be filed by everyone under 65 years of age whose gross income for 1967 was $600 or more.

If the taxpayer is 65 or older, a return is required only if total income amounts to $1,200 or more.

Swiss dispatch envoy to Hanoi

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — Switzerland, acting on its own initiative, has dispatched a diplomat to Hanoi in an attempt to mediate in the Vietnam war, reliable sources said.

They identified him as Oscar Rossetti, the Swiss ambassador to Peking.

Constitutional Convention

Area students visit capital

STROUDSBURG — Forty-four 10th and 11th grade students from Stroudsburg High School recently attended the Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention in Harrisburg. The group was split into two groups, one sitting in the gallery and one on the main floor. After being given a directory of delegates and a calendar of events, the students listened to the morning session. Just before the morning session ended, the group was recognized from the floor by Lt. Gov. Raymond J. Broderick, chairman of the Constitutional Convention.

Following lunch and during the long recess that followed, the students were taken to a conference room to hear several speakers. These speakers were arranged by Reverend John N. Roberts, Monroe County delegate to the Convention, from Mountainhome.

Explains problems
Mercer D. Tate, chairman of the Local Government Committee of the convention, spoke to the group first and explained the purposes and problems of his committee.

Following Tate, Guy J. Swope, constitutional consultant, explained the legal procedure of writing and revising a state constitution. Swope, in private life a public accountant, helped to write the Japanese National Constitution.

The students also heard a talk by James A. Michener, convention secretary.

Gov. Raymond Shafer spoke briefly to the students. Before their departure, the group visited the William Penn Museum.

John Kupiec, social studies teacher, accompanied the group.

Bureaucrats existed in Sumerian society. A chronicler of about 2350 B.C. wrote, "The petty official who brings the dead to the cemetery has to be paid off with seven pitchers of beer and 420 loaves of bread. And the tax collectors lurk everywhere."

Ann Landers

Marijuana dangerous

Dear Ann Landers: I am not a hippie or a far-out creep with long hair and sandals. I attend a good eastern school and am a law-abiding, peace-loving citizen.

I want to ask a serious question and I need a direct answer. Is marijuana dangerous? Many of my friends smoke pot and have advanced some good arguments in favor of it. They claim pot gives them a high feeling but no hangover like alcohol. They insist it is not physically addictive and a person can quit without experience withdrawal symptoms. No one I know who smokes pot will admit to taking anything stronger. This discounts the theory that pot smokers often go on to other stuff. They say the only thing wrong with pot is that it is illegal and the law will soon be changed.

I have never used pot but I confess the idea is somewhat appealing. Perhaps your answer will help me decide. It may also be useful for some of my pot-smoking friends — including my fiancée.

UNDECIDED

Dear Undecided: MY answer to your question, "Is pot dangerous?" would cost no mustard. You might as well ask your mother. An answer from three of the country's most distinguished psychiatrists, however, might make a dent.

Dr. Edward M. Litin, Head of Psychiatry at Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., says:

"I am dead set against marijuana because it produces confusion, hallucinations and impulsive behavior. While some marijuana users have no inclination to try anything stronger, many DO graduate from pot to more powerful drugs and of course this can lead to serious trouble."

Dr. Zigmund M. Lebensohn, Chief of Psychiatry at Sibley Memorial Hospital, Washington, D.C., says:

"I consider marijuana a serious problem for our 'alienated youth.' It is not harmless, as some users insist, and I am sorry the notion that it is non-addictive has gained such wide acceptance. Although people who use marijuana do not experience withdrawal symptoms when it is removed, they are tremendously drawn to it and many users go back to marijuana after they have left the hospital because they want to recapture the pleasurable feeling. This dependency is just as serious as a physical addiction."

"In my professional experience I have seen a number of young people experience psychotic episodes precipitated by marijuana. Intense emotional experiences were sufficient to trip the balance in the direction of acute psychotic disorganization. This sometimes lasts for weeks and even months. In certain instances, the effects continue indefinitely and cause complete disruption of a life plan. Tremendous expense to the smoker and his family and the end is often a totally unproductive human being."

"Some individuals have been able to use marijuana and get away with it, but these individuals have stable nervous systems. Most young people who smoke marijuana do not have stable central nervous systems and for this reason it is particularly dangerous for them."

Feature speaker listed for Witness convention

BANGOR — Christian Weining of Brooklyn, N.Y., Bible lecturer and representative of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, will be the principal speaker at the forthcoming convention of Jehovah's Witnesses to be held the weekend of March 8 through 10, at the Blue Valley Farm Show Building.

Weining, age 36, has been active as a minister for 24 years. For the past 10 years he has been a traveling representative for the Watchtower Society serving congregations in Georgia, New York, Ohio, Connecticut and Pennsylvania. Prior to his present assignment he served in the district that took in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. His wife, Nina C., travels with him.

Showing film

During the two weeks before the convention Weining will visit surrounding congregations and show the film "God Cannot Lie." The East Stroudsburg congregation will view this film today at 7:30 and the public is invited to attend. It will be shown free of charge.

Commenting on the film, Weining stated, "In an age

when it is becoming fashionable to say that "God is dead," it is thrilling for honest-hearted persons to see evidence by the medium of motion pictures that God indeed is alive and is working out his purpose for the earth and man upon it."

The film was produced by the world headquarters of Jehovah's Witnesses.

The Roseto Kingdom Hall will serve as temporary headquarters for the forthcoming convention.
